RCE New Claim. 6. An article of manufacture, in the form of a financial product according to Claim 1, created using the following equations identified in the Specification, wherein:

$\text{$SP}$ = home sale price after ownership period

$\text{$PP}$ = home purchase price

CI\% = compound appreciation of area real estate index = $(1 + \text{I\%})^T$ (after T years).

The HAVEN return of value ($HR) equation can be written as follows:

$$\text{$HR} = \text{$HYP} * T * \text{F\%}$$

$\text{$HYP}$ = total yearly payments

T = years of payments

F% = fractional premium return rate (function of time and appreciation trend)

The factor F% determining the amount of premium return can take on several values:

For $\text{$HPV} > 0$ (price appreciation above the average trend line) F% can be a function of several variables, is set by agreement with the buyer, but always ranges between 0 and 1. Usually F% would be = 0 in this case since the owner did better than average appreciation. Figure 4 area labeled "A" shows this case.

For $\text{\$HPV} = 0$ then $\text{I\%} = 0$ and $\text{\$HR} = 0$ (price appreciation was average).

For $\text{$HPV} < 0$ then F% ranges linearly from 0 when appreciation is average, to 1 when there is no appreciation, and there is some premium return ($\text{$HR} > 0$). Figure 4 area labeled "B" shows this case.

The final case is when the homeowner shows a loss on the sale of the home, that is, when $(\text{$SP} - \text{$PP}) < 0$, then the return $\text{$HR} = (\text{$PP} - \text{$SP})$ which guarantees that the homeowner suffers no loss of principle on the sale. Another option is to collect the premium in a lump sum, but this usually will increase the mortgage value (if the owner can't come up with the extra money), upon which the homeowner is paying interest charges.
